ABSTRACT

The first of two papers in this document is a report describing the work of the International Federation of Library Association's (IFLA) first professional board functioning under the Chicago rule changes of 1985. Topics include changes in the annual meeting structure; changes in the Medium Term Programme 1986-1991 (MTP); coordination with the Core Programmes; and budget. The second paper provides a listing of all papers presented at the 1987 IFLA Council and General Conference with instructions on how to obtain photocopies; an index of the papers listed by session, division, section, and round table, and other papers; and an index by authors. REPORT TO THE IFLA COUNCIL 1987

The Work of the Professional Board 1986-87

Irwin H. Pizer, Chairman

This is the end of the first Professional Board (PB) which has functioned under the Rules changes which were passed in Chicago in 1985 - i.e. that the Chairman has been elected for a two year term from outgoing members of the PB. This change has been a great help in coping with the work of the PB, but it would be impossible for the Chairman of the PB to function effectively without the untiring efforts of Guust van Wesemael, IFLA's Professional Coordinator who also functions as the Secretary of the PB. He maintains daily contact with the professional units and the individuals who carry out the work of IFLA, provides an effective interface with the officers and staff of the core programmes, and copes with the myriad details which must be attended to for the smooth and efficient operation of the professional programme.

I am delighted to have this opportunity to thank Guust publicly for his dilligent support, intelligent counsel, collegiality and friendship. I have enjoyed working with him over the past six years of my service on the Professional Board.

Changes in the annual meeting structure

There has been an increasing amount of comment and criticism expressed over the last several years regarding the annual conference program. Among the problems identified are:

- The large numbers of papers of varying quality
- The difficulties of sections to interact because of scheduling conflicts
- The number of program sessions devoted to the same topics with, in some cases, the same speakers
- The problem of obtaining translations of papers into all of the official IFLA languages

- The problems associated with unsolicited papers
- The difficulty of persons unfamiliar with IFLA in knowing how the program speakers are selected
- The desire of persons to present papers
- The time constraints on Sections and Round Tables for the preparation of a high quality program
- The need for Sections to conduct in-depth analyses of topics of current interest in their areas, by holding workshops or seminars
- The lack of interaction between the core programmes and the Sections
- The limited availability of simultaneous interpretation,
- The need to revise the conference week schedule so as to make the best use of the time available, and of course,
- The costs associated with the holding of the meeting and with the reproduction of mountains of paper.

Following the Chicago meeting, the Professional Board reviewed the problems of paper handling and reproduction, and made some procedural changes to try to reduce the size of the problem. Some of these changes were in effect in Tokyo, and the PB examined the results after the conference. It was apparent that the problems associated with paper handling were only a part of the problem, and that what was needed was a broader review of the conference structure itself.

After the Tokyo meeting, I established a working group to consider these problems. A series of working papers were prepared by the Working Group members, Professional Board members, and Section and Core Programme officers. Various recommendations and analyses of past meetings by the Secretary General, the Professional Coordinator, previous Professional Boards, etc. were provided to the members to help in their consideration of the problems. The Working Group met in Amsterdam in February of this year for two days of intensive work. The members of the Working Group were Peter Lewis (who agreed to serve as chair), Adam Wysocki, Paul Nauta, Guust Van Wesemael, and myself. Carol Henry served as the Rapporteur.

Forty seven recommendations for change were made by the Working Group. These were reviewed by the Professional Board in March, ammended and approved for submission to the Executive Board. The Executive Board considered the recommendations, made some changes and approved them at its April meeting. The recommendations were communicated to the Section and Round Table officers by mid-April to give them the information at the earliest possible date. The Executive Board made a very significant change in the plan approved by the Professional Board by changing the date of implementation of the recommendations from 1989 (Paris) to 1988 (Sydney).

More details about the restructuring of the annual meeting will be presented during the Professional Board Open Forum on Monday afternoon, but a few of the major changes are:

- Establishment of three program time periods instead of two on each of two days for the Sections and Round Tables - this is intended to increase the availability of simultaneous interpretation and reduce the number of conflicts in meeting scheduling.

- Divisions, which are intended as the coordinating bodies for the Sections and Round Tables within them, will not have an annual meeting subject programme session, but may have one business meeting if it is requested. This is, in fact, a return to the principle of the Division Business meeting which was the practice a few years ago.

- Sections and Round Tables will be limited to a single program session.

- The length of program sessions has been increased from 1½ to 2½ hours to provide a better length of programme period to allow for presentation and discussion. It does, however, represent a reduction of overall programme time for the professional units of ½ hour.

▪ A maximum of three speakers is permitted in the 2½ hour programme session

▪ Limits have been placed on the maximum number of pages of text which can be presented at a program session. It is the decision of the Section or Round Table as to the number of speakers at the session 1 to 3) and how the page allocation is divided. This change appears to have generated the most misunderstanding, and I should like to try to clarify this decision. It is not the intention of the Professional Board to set any limit on the length of a paper which an invited speaker may wish to produce, and this has NOT be done. What has been done is to limit the number of pages which can be PRESENTED in a given time period and consequently, the number of pages which must be REPRODUCED for the session. This is a very important distinction. The speaker may produce a PUBLICATION version of an IFLA paper which is longer and more detailed than is able to be presented as part of a program session. In fact, we expect that many speakers will wish to produce a publication version which IS different from the presentation version.

▪ The Sections and Round Tables are charged with the professional review of papers presented at their program sessions in order to assure that the quality of the presentation is high.

▪ A two year cycle for planning the program sessions is required. That is, at this meeting, Standing Committees are working on the preparation of the 1989 Paris meeting program, and completing detailed work on their 1988 Sydney program.

▪ A program session for contributed papers had been established. The first of these will take place in Sydney. A call for papers was published in the second 1987 issue of IFLA Journal.

▪ One day of the conference week is made available to Sections and Round Tables to hold full or part-day workshops and/seminars. Any costs involved in these meetings will be charged in addition to the conference registration fee. This day was the former mid-week Tour day which has been permanently moved to the Saturday at the end of the conference week. Study tours of libraries or other institutions of interest may be arranged by Sections in this time period. This time period compensates for the shorter program time period. Papers presented at these sessions are NOT considered conference papers and are not reproduced for general distribution.

- The possible change in annual meeting scope and content by holding a full conference in Council years and a working conference (that is, committee business only) in non-Council years was rejected by the WG and the PB and EB as being against the interests of IFLA's members.

These are only some of the changes which will be taking place over the next two years. Time does not permit the enunciation of all of them today. The changes and the implications of the changes have been carefully considered by the IFLA Steering Bodies and much comment and advice was received from members at all levels of the IFLA structure.

The problems are recognized by everyone, but solutions are not possible without change. Change is always difficult - we are more comfortable with what we know than with what we don't know or with what seems unfamiliar. The Professional Board will be monitoring the application of these changes as they go into effect, and will be soliciting comment from you. The first conference evaluation questionnaire has been developed for this meeting. Please take a few minutes to complete this instrument by the end of the meeting and hand it in. It will help the Boards enormously as they continue to grapple with a difficult and important area of IFLA activity, and will also provide assistance to the local hosts of future IFLA meetings.

Changes in the MTP

Because IFLA is a dynamic organization, it is continually growing, changing, and evolving. It must both guide and influence the changes in the library world and provide a forum for the presentation and discussion of new concepts and new ways of doing things. It must facilitate the transfer of library and information technology. The goals for IFLA are codified in the Medium Term Programme 1986-1991, (MTP) which was prepared in 1985. A number of changes have taken place in the terms of reference of Sections and Divisions: Working Groups have become Round Tables, and Round Tables have become Sections. The Core Programmes have, in some cases, been redefined and their structure has been changed. The Executive Board has approved the publication of a Second Edition of the MTP which will be prepared this fall, and published early in 1988. Updates of the MTP can be found in IFLA Journal, the most recent having appeared in issue one for 1987.

Coordination with the Core Programmes

Because the work of IFLA is accomplished in two ways, that is through the Core Programmes and through the Divisions, it is necessary to assure that both streams of activity comingle and strengthen each other. To this end, a number of recommendations of the Working Group have dealt with this issue, and there will be improved communication and cooperation between these program areas. It is our hope that this will be evident to you in better annual conference presentations, and more highly integrated projects and publications.

Budget

One of the most difficult problems which has faced the PB is caused by the insufficiency of funding to perform the various programs and projects which are desired by the Sections, Round Tables and Working Groups. One of the major results of the 1986 Working Group which discussed the problems of adequate funding for all IFLA professional work was the agreement that IFLA must place its dues structure on a more realistic basis relative to the support of its announced program, and that a broader category of membership could help in this matter. The WG recognized that both the core programmes and the professional programmes are seriously underfunded and the EB must reduce the scope of these activities if funding is not obtained. Actions to be taken at this Council meeting are hoped to help resolve this pressing problem and will allow for the continued development of IFLA.

My thanks are extended to all of the members of the 1985-87 Professional Board, and in particular to Christine Bossmyer, who has served most capably as the Vice Chair. The members have all given generously of their time, energy, minds and skills in the performance of their PB role. I would also like to express my thanks to the staff of IFLA Headquarters for their support, cooperation and assistance, and to Hilda Urai, who has produced and managed the masses of documents on which the professional programmes depend.

Thank you.

Brighton, United Kingdom

Papers presented at the 53rd IFLA Council and General Conference, Brighton, United Kingdom, 16 - 21 August, 1987.

The following papers presented at the 1987 IFLA General Conference have been deposited with the Library Association Library. Photocopies may either be borrowed by members or purchased in the normal way. Pagination is indicated for the first language named, so that estimates of cost may be made, but pagination may vary if other versions are required. 'E' indicates English language, 'F' French, 'G' German, 'R' Russian, and 'S' Spanish. Members requesting papers need cite only IFLA 1987 Brighton, followed by the number of the paper as listed here, and the language required, where applicable. In an attempt to cut down some of the bulk of the papers, translated editions are now frequently only available in a "condensed version". Persons outside the United Kingdom wishing to obtain copies should apply to their own national Clearinghouse or to IFLA HQ, as appropriate. Papers submitted before the deadline of 15 June 1987 were included in pre-printed booklets. Pagination varies for these, but is not normally more than three pages per paper. Booklets are available for purchase from Library Association Headquarters at £5.00 per booklet, while stocks last.
